

Insight School of Wisconsin Receives Accreditation Status

Grantsburg, Wis. - January 17, 2008 -

Provisional accreditation was recently granted to Insight School of Wisconsin from the Northwest Association of Accredited Schools, one of six regional accrediting associations in the United States.

To receive accreditation status, Insight School of Wisconsin met or exceeded requirements in eight areas: mission and expectations for student learning, curriculum, instruction, assessments, leadership and organization, school services, facility and finance, and culture of improvement.

“Accreditation is recognition of a high-quality and well-balanced educational program,” said Jeff Bush, Executive Director of Insight School of Wisconsin. “It ensures transferability of credits among other regionally accredited schools.”

“Insight students and their parents can be assured that they’re receiving the highest quality education available,” Bush continued. “We’re pleased that our students will be universally recognized by colleges and universities for their academic work.”
