

Racine girl named Insight School's Student of the Month-Language Arts

Grantsburg, Wis. - November 20, 2007 -

Justina Walley of Racine was honored as Insight School's "Student of the Month-Language Arts" for September 2007.

The Student of the Month is selected by the instructors of each academic area in recognition of a student's achievement during the previous month.

"Walley demonstrates a remarkable commitment to learning," said Bill Beesley, principal of Insight Schools. "Her solid school performance and positive attitude will go a long way towards her future success."

Outside of school, Walley enjoys reading, sewing and singing at the Racine Baptist Church.

Insight Schools is a full-time, tuition-free online Wisconsin public high school open to any high school student in the state. Insight is a charter school made possible through a partnership with the Grantsburg Public School District and the University of Phoenix.

For more information about Insight Schools, visit the Web site <http://www.insightwi.net> or call (866) 800-0027.